WHERE THE TROUBLE LIES

Premier Brewster has been given prominence in the newspapers of Great Britain and Canada by his frank statement that he finds British capital very timid indeed in coming to Alberta, and that he is more than perturbed.

But does the trouble lie wholly with British capital? Is American capital, or Canadian capital, or more anxious to enter the Alberta field than Premier Brewster intimates he finds British capital at the present time?

The Bulletin has long and consistently urged the government in this line of the present capital which followed the unprecedented passing of legislation which prejudicially affected money already invested in this province. It was pointed out that capital was timid, and that a persistence in legislation of this nature must undoubtedly have a detrimental effect in damping the financial stream which would otherwise be in this direction. Premier Brewster is apparently finding out that these warnings were not unwarranted.

Prior to 1918 a first mortgage was the borrower's personal concern to repay; thus the security on the property mortgaged. It was really a promise to pay given by the borrower, not, as collateral, pledged against property deposited in the mortgage. But what happened? In 1918 legislation which directly interfered with the contractual relation existing between borrower and lender was enacted. The right of the lender to enforce the security was taken away. The mortgage was no longer a contract, but a mere promise to pay. The lender was left with a mortgage which was a promise to pay, but which was not enforceable. This was a most unfortunate situation, and it had a decidedly prejudicial effect on all mortgage investments in the province.

The even worse was what happened in 1922. The present government initiated and passed the Tax Recovery Act, which is nothing short of confiscatory legislation of the most pernicious type. Previously a mortgage was to be paid by registered mail to all parties having any interest in the land before any action for collection of taxes could be taken. Since 1922 this has not been the case. The mortgagee is now left with a mortgage which is not enforceable, and which is not a security for the loan. This is a most unfortunate situation, and it has a decidedly prejudicial effect on all mortgage investments in the province.

Subsequently the municipality may offer the property for sale, and any profit derived from the sale is to be divided between the municipality and the mortgagee. This is a most unfortunate situation, and it has a decidedly prejudicial effect on all mortgage investments in the province.

Even this was not the end. At one time the "first mortgage" was the only mortgage which was enforceable. But now, with the passage of the Tax Recovery Act, the first mortgage is no longer enforceable. This is a most unfortunate situation, and it has a decidedly prejudicial effect on all mortgage investments in the province.

There is a formidable list of charges to take priority over a first mortgage. If they are chargeable against the title, they should take priority. If they are chargeable against the land, they should take priority. If they are chargeable against the borrower, they should take priority. This is a most unfortunate situation, and it has a decidedly prejudicial effect on all mortgage investments in the province.

have been given priority over the mortgage agreement under which the mortgage investment was made. These liens have all been made retroactive. They affect mortgages already in existence when the various acts were passed just the same as they affect mortgages given after their passage, but the difference is that in the one instance they interfere unjustifiably with a contractual relationship already existing.

It is a wonder then that Premier Brewster finds British capital shy about entering Alberta? When these acts were passed it was foreseen that retroactive legislation of such a drastic nature would inevitably bring about the withdrawal of capital and produce a shortage of funds for the development of our agricultural and other resources.

Not only this, but the savings of our own people are being levied outside the province in low interest-bearing securities, owing to the want of confidence in Alberta mortgage investments through the passage of this confiscatory legislation.

Premier Brewster was warned in the past that what he has found has happened would happen, and he can be warned again that until we have in Alberta an absolutely trustworthy first mortgage, which means exactly what its name implies, there will be no rush of capital for investment in this province.

The remedy lies in his own hands and the hands of his followers in the legislature. Repeal the objectionable legislation and give investors that protection they are entitled to in all equity.

IN THE WORLD OF MUSIC

FINE PROGRAMS NEXT SEASON

Announcement has just been made in New York of the arrangements for next season's Roosevelt recitals which are given annually in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Roosevelt. The four recitals will include Chabrier, Debussy, Ravel, and Stravinsky. Later, Dalcroze, Croche, and Schostakovich. The first recital will be given by Alfreda San Malo, Mrs. Charles C. San Malo, and other headliners. The series will begin on January 15 with the Brahms Liebeslieder, a song cycle of eighteen waltzes with four voices and two pianos presented by Dalcroze, Croche and Schostakovich. This is the first time in many years that any group has attempted this delightful Brahms cycle and the performance will undoubtedly attract widespread attention.

For the second concert of the series, the famous "Revelers," a vocal quartet which has achieved an unparalleled success in the world of the recital, will be joined with Alfreda San Malo, the pianist.

Chabrier will have the third concert of the series to himself, and the final program will be provided by Rose, Ponselle, of the Metropolitan Opera company, and Alfreda San Malo, the Latin violinist.

Tickets for the entire Roosevelt series will be available at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, immediately. Tickets for single concerts will not be sold until January 2.

OPERA SINGER VISITS HOME

The first week in August saw Mrs. Margaret Alvarez, the opera singer, arrive in her native city.

A probable visit to a hundred of her admirers could guess the name of the city.

It is, of course, Liverpool.

She was heard by her fellow "Liverpoolians" in an afternoon recital, and later in a concert with the Liverpool Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. Alvarez is a Peruvian, but she was born in Liverpool, her father being at the time the first Minister in England. Her mother is now the head of the Peruvian Legation in Washington.

She has always been a great favorite in England, and her status still affords the facade of the famous house which Oscar Hammerstein built in London just before the war.

She is the most magnetic, vigorous and convincing of all prima donnas, and the Liverpool Post in its editorial announcement of her arrival, says: "It would be fatal to try to exaggerate in any way the charm of her personality, whether on or off the stage."

LAUDS CHICAGO FOR ITS WORK

Credit for developing the first music schools in education with settlement work in the slums of American cities is given to Chicago in a letter from Felix Salmond, the editor who is supporting the work of the new music committee of the National Federation of Settlements.

Salmond, the first settlement music school, according to Mr. Salmond, was established in Chicago in 1892, as an adjunct to Hull House. It was under the direction of Clara Smith. The movement has since spread to other cities, and the settlement music schools are now active in 14 of the 15 settlement centers in a circle of 25 cities.

The Chicago Federation has accumulated $18,000 in the work of this music committee, and has organized a music extension fund to assist in administration and development. The settlement music schools are active and supported. A small fee is charged for lessons. The object is to put the possibility of a musical education within the grasp of students whose financial condition would not otherwise permit it.

Trusty Ukulele Makes A Big Hit

Alfreda San Malo, violinist, who will return to the United States in October for his second American tour, made the acquaintance of the ukulele for the first time during his trip to France on the liner France. His table companions in the dining saloon were George Martin, editor of Paris and French magazine, and Edward Anthony, New York humorist. Mr. Martin, en route to France for a holiday, had brought his "trusty ukulele" along and succeeded in interesting San Malo in the instrument.

The passengers suggested, as a stunt for the ship's concert, a duet for violin and ukulele, with San Malo and Mr. Martin as the performers. But both musicians declined modestly, consenting, however, to appear as individual numbers on the program.

Mr. Anthony's contribution to the ship's concert was a poem, singing the praises of San Malo with the "ukule" and of Mr. Martin with the "violin."

Mr. Martin is well known to music folk as the presiding officer of the public meetings which were held in New York last winter to discuss the program of the Juilliard Foundation. He is an amateur musician of some skill, and frequently appears in popular form on musical subjects in the columns of his magazine, which claims a circle of readers.

Famous Tenor In Good Voice

The article which appeared in the New York Herald Tribune, last week, on the death of the famous tenor, Enrico Caruso, has set off a new wave of interest in the life of the famous singer. In this direction for several months, and this year they grew to such proportions that formal programs became necessary in place of the informal concerts which have hitherto been the rule. The first recital of the series was given by the famous tenor, Enrico Caruso, in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, last week.
